

Corporate and Exhibitions

First impressions count...

Your event is a reflection of your organisation and embodies your values, reflects your culture and is a critical bridge to your customers. With such a commitment, you need a partner who “understands” and that you can trust to deliver your needs first time, every time.

For more than 25 years, we have been proud to offer an end-to-end solution to all our corporate and exhibition clients. Building on our extensive experience, we are well placed to offer a suite of products and services from a public address system through to the complete conference package consisting of sound, lighting, audio visual, staging, set design & build and many other aspects that combine to achieve the right result.

Each client is assigned a designated Project Manager who will ensure that no aspect of your event is left to chance, promoting accountability and making sure you never hear the phrase “that’s not my job”.

Unlike many of our competitors, we maintain all essential competencies in-house. With dedicated sound and lighting technicians working in tandem with video, IT and presentation engineers, communication issues become a thing of the past.

Furthermore, because we also boast an in-house fabrication department, our solutions are cost-effective, efficient and completely bespoke. Our extensive warehouse space allows us to pre-build and prepare your requirements, enabling us to identify any issues that may arise well in advance of the event.

We would welcome the opportunity to partner with you on your next project. Let us show you why organisations such as Sky, Nike, Emergency Planning Society, BBC, HFC, numerous local authorities and many others rely on Cloud One to deliver their promises time after time.
